WOULD CHANGE ROAD BUILDING

Present System of Constructing State Roads in Adams County will be Abandoned in Case Suggestion is Followed.

If the recommendations of State Highway Commissioner Hunter made on Thursday in an address before the State Convention of Engineers at Harrisburg are followed, the present system of road making by the state in Adams County will be abandoned and a different method used. Mr. Hunter suggests that instead of building isolated sections of several miles as between Arendtsville and Biglerville and in the vicinity of McSherrystown, the roads be built to connect with each other so that there may be long stretches of good state highways and so that it will not be a matter of travelling a few miles on good roads to get on another highway of different character. Mr. Hunter in discussing the matter said:

"The primary move in asking for the reconstruction of a road must be made by the supervisors of a township. This system gives isolated sections of reconstructed roads the longest section of improved road, being 14.2 miles in order to get aid in a measure of the patch work system now being followed, and to provide for a system of continuous improved highways, the Legislature should adopt such a plan as will authorize the reconstruction of main roads or trunk lines throughout the State, following in the main the present highways and eventually connecting by improved roads several centers of population, county seats, principal cities and towns.

"These trunk lines will require the reconstruction of about 3000 miles of roads and the cost of such reconstruction and maintenance afterward should be paid for entirely by the State. No better investment could be made, the value of good roads is incalculable. The improvement of these roads will greatly benefit the rural districts, will invite strangers to be our guests and will afford our citizens an opportunity of seeing the most fertile fields and the grandest scenery to be found anywhere in the world, and which today remains hidden and unknown to but few. We believe that with a system of good roads connecting centers of population and extending to the State line in all directions and connecting with similar systems in adjoining States there will be inaugurated an era of good feeling and fellowship of very great commercial and intercourse that, as the years go by, will more firmly weld and cement the bond that unites us in the sisterhood of States."

Try This For CATARRH

Get a 10 pound (pronounced High-count) sirloin today.

Have it cut one inch thick from the loin to the thinner flat corner with such cuttle, and broiler it for 14 or 15 rare minutes.

Immediately you will know that Hyomei is the most wonderful catarrh and irritated membrane.

Then for 5 minutes three more doses of Hyomei, and you will see the fear of all catarrh sufferers—"Shall I have catarrh?"

"Last year I suffered terribly with catarrh. I used one bottle of Hyomei and my catarrh was better."—Miss Helen McKay, Loyalton, Cal.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei balsam and simple directions for use, costs only $1.00. Extra bottles, if necessary, 50 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere and at The People's Drug Store.

Guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, asthma and sore throat, or money back.

TOWN AMATEURS GIVE GOOD SHOW

Large House Delighted with Two Plays and Musical Program Produced in Walter's Theatre by Local Talent.

Before a house in which practically every seat was taken Gettysburg's amateur players delighted their audience Thursday evening with their latest productions, "The Open Door," "Surprises" and a new musical program.

As in "The Toastmaster," given earlier in the season, the local young people showed remarkable ability and training and the frequent applause from the large audiences showed how well their work was appreciated.

"The Open Gate," a pretty little domestic drama was given by Miss Louise Stahle, Miss Frances McClean, Mr. Frank Gardenhall and Mr. Jay Wolfe, all of whom acquitted themselves to the entire satisfaction of the family. The stage settings were well arranged and the interpretation of the various parts was most satisfactory.

The musical program followed and the house fairly "broke loose" over the singing of Miss Ruth Myers who was pretty costumed and entered into the "spirit" of the occasion as an old professional chorus girls and men. The program closed with a medley of "Put Your Old Grey Bonnet," "I've Got Rings on My Fingers," "Z-Yip-I-Addy" and "The Japanese Navy Beat Kelly!" The gay bonnets, the red flowers and the costumes of the Kelly song made a brilliant and applauding and loud, followed each chorus. Mrs. Roy Zinn, and Mr. Carroll and Mr. Gardenhall were the chorus men pretty continuously and entered into the "spirit" of the occasion as old professional chorus girls and men. The program closed with a medley of "Put Your Old Grey Bonnet," "I've Got Rings on My Fingers," "Z-Yip-I-Addy" and "The Japanese Navy Beat Kelly!" The gay bonnets, the red flowers and the costumes of the Kelly song made a brilliant and applauding and loud, followed each chorus. Mrs. Roy Zinn, and Mr. Carroll and Mr. Gardenhall were the chorus men the cadence in their very parts. The solo by Mr. Wolfinger, Miss Ruth Clutz and Mr. Carroll also received well merited applause.

The management of the musical program, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," was in the hands of Mr. Carroll. The stage effects were most beautiful throughout and the singing of the Clutz and the chorus made it one of the best features of the evening.

The plays were coached most cleverly well given, ahead the evening's enter- ing was a success in every way.

Miss Nellie H. Weaver, Miss Elizabeth Van Cleve, Mrs. Roy Zinn, Mr. Mark Eckert and Mr. Carroll Wilson.

In addition to those in the plays the following assisted: Misses Ethel and Elizabeth Cox, Blanche Klinger, Margaret Weinstein, Mary Shryhock, Ruth Wilson, Helen Dickson, Ruth Gardenhart, Messrs. Herbert Humphries, Harry Bell, Harold Sigmund, Ralph Sweeney, I. Bloomhurst, Master Ray Harrington, Miss Bessie Tiemeyer was the accompanist.

WHITE CHURCH

White Church, June 8—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Appler and daughters, Clara and Mary, of Gettysburg, visited Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Appler on Sunday afternoon at the home of W. J. Collins.

Miss Lula Worley and friend, Miss Brents, of York, were visiting friends and relatives in this place for several days.

L. U. Collins has finished sawing lumber for Mr. Rice, and Monday he will move his mill to Gettysburg, where he will be engaged in sawing for Mr. Johns.

John Swartz, of Gettysburg, R. D. 1, is the guest of Conrad Swartz.

Charles Rodtsell has finished sawing out the McAllister tract and has moved his mill to the Rodtsell tract of which he is now engaged in sawing.

Miss Ella Bream has returned home from Bendersville, where she had been sawing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Little and children, Ray and Cathryn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Little, of Allowgas.

WOUNDED DEER SAVED

Special Game Protector I. S. Brown, of Round Top, has in his stable a wounded deer that was rescued from dogs near Fountain Dale, Saturday afternoon.

A. C. Gunn, Fountain Dale, saw a wounded deer run into a field on his father's farm, followed by a pack of hounds. He hurriedly got his gun, went after the hounds and drove them away.

When the dogs left, the deer moved a little distance and then lay down in the field very tired and unable to walk further. Mr. Gunn got his wagon and hauled the deer to the barn. There he gave it very careful attention and after awhile it was able to eat and drink. Special Game Protector Brown was notified and he, with Forest Ranger Harry Thomas, Glen Fursey, went to Fountain Dale. They found the deer recovering and Mr. Gunn handed it in his wagon to Mr. Brown's stable in Round Top. There it can be seen by all interested in observing the growth of a deer's horns. The deer is a male about two years old.

MUST WAIT SEVERAL WEEKS

Gettysburg people who use anxious for the census returns have several more weeks to wait before their curiosity will be satisfied. The Census Bureau is being besieged with inquiries as to the results of the census enumerations in the cities and towns.

The public is promised, however, that it will not have to wait as long for census returns this year as has been the case in former censuses. The force employed in the bureau is larger this year than it has ever been, and the policy of making the bureau permanent, instead of requiring a force to convene year, adds greatly to the efficiency of the force, since there is a highly trained force to build upon when a large number of new employees are taken on for the busy work of the year of the census and the two or three following. In addition, tabulating machines more nearly perfect in operation have been installed for the work this year.

WILL COLLECT DATA

Edward B. Mauson, the newly elected president of the Cumberland Valley Farmers' Association, presided at a gathering information concerning the equipment at each one of the 61 fire companies in the county. The data will be turned over to the mayor and the chief fire marshall of every town represented in the association and will be of value in case it becomes necessary for one to call upon another for aid in case of a serious fire. The information will also show the number and style of steamers and how many feet of hose each company owns, and of course, information about the hydrant, etc.

PRIZE STRAWBERRY

Harry M. Lawver has presented The News office with the prize strawberry of the season. It measured 7 1-4 inches in circumference. The season pretty close to holding the record. Mr. Lawver is well known as a successful berry grower.

FIFTY FIVE AT TUESDAY MARKET

Largest Number since Establishment of Institution. First Appearance of County Peas and Beets. Many Cherries.

Memorial Day crowds would have had to hustle to make a showing with the people who attended the Gettysburg curb market on Tuesday the Square for an hour or more presenting as busy an appearance as though a big event were on hand.

"Fifty five wagons were at market—almost double the number on at any other time, and in spite of the large number of baskets loaded to the big number of vegetables and fruits on hand all sold well, with the exception of a few who were a little late getting to market. One man sold three crates of strawberries in a half hour. Cherries sold rapidly at three and four boxes for a quarter. There were 125 bushels offered for sale. Strawberries remained high, some selling as high as twelve and a half cents a box. The high price of cherries is accounted for by the fact that a carload lot was shipped from Biglerville for which eleven cents a box was paid. These cherries, however, had the stems and were perfect in every particular.

There were some new things at Tues, morning's market. Mrs. Bucher had the first cucumbers of the year. Mrs. Starner brought in with other things, gooseberries and green currants. The market was surely a busy place and a big success.

MRS. HARRIET ADLER

Mrs. Harriet Adler, widow of Dr. Abner Adler, of Davon, died at her home in that place Sunday night.

Mrs. Adler, who was well known here, was a daughter of Dr. David Gilbert, formerly of this place, who moved to Hagerstown about fifty years ago. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Jennie Rodgers, Mrs. Jessie Schick, and Miss Harriet Adler, all of Davon. Two sisters, Mrs. Lindsay Potts and Miss Julia Gilbert, both of Gettysburg, also survive.

Funeral Wednesday with interment in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

EGGSASPERATING

A farmer from Franklin County, while on his way to Chambersburg with a load of eggs, got quite interested in a horse race along the road, and forgetting about driving slowly in order to keep the eggs intact drove up his horse and soon out distanced all other rigs. But forgot to get a prize when he arrived at it is destination. Then said the condition of the eggs, about thirty dozen being broken and what few had escaped breakage had to be handled before you could recognize them.

ELECTED ACADEMY PRINCIPAL

The Saving of Patience Godwin

By KATHLEEN J. MCURDY

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association.

This is the legend of Patience Godwin as it has been handed down in our family for the edification of her descendents. Patience to the day when without a doubt of any one her excitements was a young girl. She was the best dancer of the Virginia reels, her beau attentive to Jane Hartshorne, and Jesse Pye quite a prominent figure during a while.

A great deal of interest was manifested in the trial, especially because Patience was a favorite with all. Evidence brought against her was convincing.

Young Whitaker when his sweetheart had jilted him and proved guilty said that he could not be present when she was hanged, and he wanted no lonzer remain in a so called civilized community where such superstitions were rife and such sensities were practiced. The day before the execution he left the settlement, saying that he would go and live among the Indians. He parting with Patience was disastrous in the extreme, and he never answered anything but the irreproved conscience of the Puritans.

The day of the execution was set up to a wood near the settlement and figures built around the pile on which the burning, which was set for the hour of noon. The day arrived, and there was a mellow haze in the atmosphere which made the sun seem down the great men of the settlement as they filed from the jail to collect at the place of execution. Presently in the distance appeared a little procession, led by the minister, who read from his Bible and offered such prayers as he thought might soothe the evil spirits that were said to have put the poor girl. Patience soon next, attended by the jailer and followed by a few of her intimate friends.

Now, it is declared that what I am about to narrate is a matter of history. Indeed accounts of those who presided by the witchcraft humility have been found in the records of counties, but I admit there is no historical account of it. Here I have merely been perpetuated in the family. We are somewhat skeptical over such superstitious people, looking always for the supernatural, yet there is really no more remarkable to the witch dogma than to the one which was perpetuated at Patience Godwin's burning.

The minister, who had been a friend of her parents, her brothers and sisters and her former lover, Jesse Pye, ascended step supported the stake. She was bound, and the executioner was about to lay the torch to the pile of wood, the setting sun broke through a cloud, and there appeared in the heavens a splendor. A glory from heaven seemed to be present, and the fire which was to consume her was for the moment extinguished.

As she stood or specter or god, Send of by the yellow light, which every moment took on a more brilliant hue, it preached those about the stake kneeling with horror. Then a voice, by which, he said in a voice soft, but distinct:

"Come out, Satan?"

Then it seemed to those who saw that Patience writhed for a moment as though her face shone with a spirit light. Raising his sword, the jailer cut the cords that bound her, and taking her hand, led her away in the direction the sun had just disappeared.

Some say that the two flames were seen by a newcomer, and others came up from the rest, giving a still more wonderful appearance to the western illumination at the moment of the falling flakes.

I have examined the records of the weather for the year in question and found number of the Gettysburg Gazette that covered Monsemmons to a great depth, falling on the 20th day of June and yet bore blighted.

The legend says that Patience and the stranger were seen walking through the mountains of the Susquehanna during Illumination, delicious Really on Sunday Hotel.

Patience never returned to Maryland, but after the Revolution a report was circulated that she was known to be living in Maryland, in the vicinity of Hagerstown. Who the mysterious stranger was has never been definitely known, but in Massachusetts most people believed that it was none other than the devil himself. John. But in the family heretofore the legend it has been considered that he was none other than Francis Wayne, who went everywhere preaching and fore the execution for the purpose of working on the superstitions of the people and thus saving the girl he loved.

It was not long after this that the witchcraft hallucination died out, and the people of Massachusetts wondered what had possessed them. That branch of the Godwin family to which Patience belonged naturally found a more congenial social atmosphere in the south than among the colder blooded Puritans.

TRUCK

Foreman, Jos. E. Hill, assistant, Clyde Mounper; lieutenants, Joseph Smith, Ed. Swope, Moses Jessie Snyder, Raiph Hoffman. As the committee announcement the fore was soon to be white assistants, and a few more members to be disminuished.

As the matter of specter or god, Send of by the yellow light, which every moment took on a more brilliant hue, it preached those about the stake kneeling with horror. Then a voice, by which, he said in a voice soft, but distinct:

"Come out, Satan?"

Then it seemed to those who saw that Patience writhed for a moment as though her face shone with a spirit light. Raising his sword, the jailer cut the cords that bound her, and taking her hand, led her away in the direction the sun had just disappeared.

Some say that the two flames were seen by a newcomer, and others came up from the rest, giving a still more wonderful appearance to the western illumination at the moment of the falling flakes.

I have examined the records of the weather for the year in question and found number of the Gettysburg Gazette that covered Monsemmons to a great depth, falling on the 20th day of June and yet bore blighted.

The legend says that Patience and the stranger were seen walking through the mountains of the Susquehanna during Illumination, delicious Really on Sunday Hotel.

Patience never returned to Maryland, but after the Revolution a report was circulated that she was known to be living in Maryland, in the vicinity of Hagerstown. Who the mysterious stranger was has never been definitely known, but in Massachusetts most people believed that it was none other than the devil himself. John. But in the family heretofore the legend it has been considered that he was none other than Francis Wayne, who went everywhere preaching and fore the execution for the purpose of working on the superstitions of the people and thus saving the girl he loved.

It was not long after this that the witchcraft hallucination died out, and the people of Massachusetts wondered what had possessed them. That branch of the Godwin family to which Patience belonged naturally found a more congenial social atmosphere in the south than among the colder blooded Puritans.

BIG MUNSEY TOUR COMING

Automobile Tour to Cover Fifteen Hundred Miles will Arrive Here in August. One of Most Important Eastern Runs.

The Munsey Historic Tour, a big automobile run starting from Philadelphia, August 10, will leave Gettysburg as one of its stopping points. The route will lie through the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Virginia and Maryland to Washington. The agricultural mileage is 1,400 to 1,600 miles and the duration of the run two weeks.

The pathfinders will start June 10 and map a route through the most historic sections of the United States. They will be their object to find roads leading through towns, cities and sections to which is attached the most thrilling and romantic of our country's history. The tour will be double in character. While the educational value of the tour will be unquestioned, the entertainment will be greater. Two groups will be run, one consisting of touring cars entered by manufacturers and owners and the other of cars entered and driven by professionals.

The Munsey management fully expects to tour the states as far as the liability contest of last year which was one of the most successful automobile events of the year.

The route most likely will embrace the following: Philadelphia, Chester, N. J., Morristown, N. J., New Brunswick, N. Y., Lanes, Lanes, New London, Conn., Benton, Portsmouth, N. H., Portland, Me., through the Green and White mountains of New Hampshire and Vermont to Plattsburg, N. Y., through the Adirondacks to Saratoga, N. Y., Binghamton, N. Y., Harrisburg, Gettysburg, Baltimore to Washington.

The combination of practicability with sentiment and romance will be happy thought since the tour headquarters will receive a host of many letters from both manufacturers and private owners enthusiastic over the absence of the mud.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of Bessie Hollinger, who died March 6, 1906, John Hollinger, who died February 26, 1910 and Anna K. Smith who died July 28, 1910.

Dear ones, you have left us,
Thy work on earth is now no longer see,
Thy sweet voices no more can cheer us,
Their care was meant for them.
Our home is sad, O God how dreary,
Lonesome every spot.
Longing for their voices, still wearly,
Weary for we hear them not.

The midnight angel came a-roaming
Upon these lonely graves
Where three are sleeping without waking
Where three are sleeping without waves.

The ones we could not save.
Farewell, dear ones, you are at rest,
And will forever be
You could not stay on earth with us
But we can come to thee.
You are not forgotten, dear ones,
Nor will you be
As long as life and memory last
We will remember our loved ones.
By the sisters.

BROKE HIS LEG

William Keagle, of Hampton, while driving to Boulder with some choir lumber on a spring wagon, met with an accident which caused the fracture of his left leg just below the knee, both bones being broken. The shaft iron broke which caused the shafts to drop on the horse's back. The horse began kicking and Mr. Keagle jumped from the wagon and fell which caused the injury. Dr. Spotz rendered the fracture.

O YOU COXEY BADGE!

I don't wear a Carnegie medal,
Though I've written as the pen of megabrand, I've done so many brave deeds
I would wear a barrel of them.

I don't wear a halter from conserves,
I don't feel that old north pole,
And I've voted for many a congressman
And helped him out of a hole.

I never have won a peace prize,
Though I've labored for the cause,
And I've never had a medal struck
For feasting a railway car.

But I have a feller that's a dandy.
He's the best ever made,
And I'm proud of the day I bought him
For he's a dandy, I'm glad.

It's a button of gold and silver,
On one side that it shows,
And on the back of my pants,
I wear on the seat of my pants.

GRIND AND MIX YOUR OWN FEED.

Poultrymen have generally discarded feed mixtures for chicks.

Most of these mixtures are old, with pipes, have caused great mortality from bowel troubles and white diarrhea.

Preventive measures have stopped the loss from these troubles and chicks by broken grain, with grit and charcoal, have been successful. Almost exactly from many yards.

A mixture of broken grind and mix their own feed.

An excellent grist mill and shell breaker can be secured for $5.

Most poultrymen who mix feed and grit may be ground in this, and the oyster shells, which usually cost nothing, but one may prepare to pay for the machine.

This can save money, and his efficient get sound, fresh grain, in right size and mixed in proper proportion.

For the recommendation of those who desire to mix their own feed we furnish the following:

At six weeks of age use the following for each 100 chicks:

	Pounds.
Whole wheat	25
Coarse cracked corn	25
Cracked corn	25
Oatmeal	25
Barley	4
Millet	4
Rape	2

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Incubator oil should not be left in lamps over night, as it will be injured it subjects bad air and often causes bad smells.

No one needs to ask the question "Does it pay to keep hens?" when the record that 1,850,000,000 eggs were stored in cold storage warehouses on April 1. Men licked the British for a little tax on tea, but allow the inhumane treatment on the manager who compels the Cud supply to make prices high? Where is the spirit?

If the girls who pack eggs and write the accompanying letters to the men who do not all succeed, some certainly will. Let us try to make it so. Write "Hello" on the Ohio and Missouri addresses of eggs, and "Hello" on the back of the "surely fresh" by New York plants.

Texas has a law prohibiting cocks and breeder hangs hold them in water for 24 hours after the time of packing has been dropped. They will get like this.

Spring is certainly a time of lots things for the hen, but a time of prostration to some poultrymen. There are many reasons why we have been let mate things here.

Pennsylvania's association allowed its judge to enter fifty-eight birds at the Reading show, and the owners entries the other exhibitors resigned in a body and refused to show. Here judges exhibit and their own birds score they bring black crape on the show room.

Two great oak eggs thousands of years old and 10,000 to 20,000 feet laden to our late tide. Fresh eggs from in here at the Philadelphia market for $50 apiece, thirty of her daughters earned $1,000 in one year. Hens produce bran stuff is grit and dust mixed well with fresh that's green stuff.

A New Jersey grand jury investigated the big packers' methods. Found 600 eggs and 100,000 pounds of poultry in one cold storage plant. Some of these are were selling this storage fruit for "strictly fresh" in New York at 55 to 70 cents per dozen.

A bunch of tamed wild turkeys was exhibited at the Reading poultry show by a woman fancier of Virginia. Oh, for tamed Ostrich to run around among the poor aversion to a gray hair and a mosaic.

Chicago certainly has a reputation for producing bogus and fake stock in ligation. Tons of rank canned eggs shipped from there have been found and condemned, and their scent, fol lowed by the packers, has led to the trail to the true. Keep truth to follow.

Every one should have at least a few chicks if for nothing else than the exercise. When a man comes home from the store, office or shop and gets the feed pan and goes out and the downy chicks crowd around him, he forgets the worry of the day and renews his youth. Sorry for you if you haven't room for a garden patch and chicks.

BUSINESS FARMING.

Farmers Are Not as a Rule Good Business Men.

Illustrations of Successful Organizations of Grange Members in Co-operative Business Enterprises and of What They May Accomplish.

[Special Correspondence.]

It is the intention of the writer of this article to emphasize the importance of business methods in the conduct of farming. Of the practical side of how to plow and sow and reap and mow and do the thousand and one things of a practical nature on the farm every agricultural paper is bound to resist. In the multitude of communications printed and offered to the American people already little is ever said about the business methods to be employed in the records of his sales and purchases, his profits or loss, and how far a fair test of the farmer's bookkeeping methods is to answer with any degree of accuracy the questions which will be put to him the next time he takes stock, property and farm transactions. Too many will find the answers to be based upon their memory for information required from the farm ledger, inventories, complete and trustworthy records.

The farmer will be asked for a statement of the acreage, yield and selling price of all crops produced on the farm, together with the value of his live stock, dairy products, poultry, eggs, fruit, etc. In addition, he will be called upon for a statement of all the stock, poultry and bees on hand April 15, 1910, with the value placed on the latter, what amount be paid for hay, grain and other feeds not raised on the farm, but purchased for feed for domestic animals during the year, what acreage he planted for each crops in 1909 and what acreage he expects to plant for each in 1910; the number and kind of animals and fowls he owned per and value of animals slaughtered on the farm during the year, also the sales, the number and value of wool sheared, the number of colonies of bees he owned and the amount of surplus honey he produced and a complete statement of mortgage indebtedness, etc.

Business organizations of farmers for co-operative buying and selling of farm products and farm supplies, the farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance companies, many of which are connected with the Grange organization, stockmen, fruit growers, poultrymen and bee keepers' associations all tend to make the members thereof better business men, and to educate them to the best effort. Reports of what some of these organizations have accomplished during any local others to give the inspiration to go and do likewise, because we shall have something to say about ourselves.

Here, for instance, are two mutual fire insurance companies under grange management—one in New York state and the other in Ohio—the Grange Mutual Columbia Farmers' Fire Relief association, which is composed entirely of farmers who seek lower fire insurance rates. It now has assets of $1,000,000 on farm property, the total risks being $15,000,000. It cost about $1,324.74 to run this organization last year apart from losses paid. The average annual assessment for twelve years past is $1.02 per $100 which under grange management—one in New York state and the other in Ohio—the Grange Mutual Columbia Farmers' Fire Relief association, which is composed entirely of farmers who seek lower fire insurance rates. GIRL ELOPED WITH "COUNT"

17-Year-Old Philadelphia Miss Traced to Bridgeport, Conn.

FLED TO EVADE OFFICERS

Elizabeth Rodgers, Who Left Home With Dead Mother's Jewels, Married to Italian Barber Who Posed as a Count.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 10.—Elizabeth E. Rodgers, the missing seventeen-year-old Philadelphia girl, is believed, eloped from that city on May 31 with James Fredrick Barber, a barber in this city, believing him to be an Italian count. The police have had Pasclino under surveillance for a time for suspected connexion with the white slave traffic. Pasclino and the girl disappeared from sight on the day their honeymoon in this city, living in the Pasclino apartments where she remained in hiding, coming out only after nightfall. Wheeler & Wilson, superintendent of Philadelphia detectives, the girl's uncle, had been informed. They came here Tuesday evening, it is said.

The Rodgers girl, according to the police, is the daughter of Thomas Rodgers, wealthy hosiery manufacturer, of 848 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, both of whom live in the suburb of Elkins Park. She left home the morning after the death of Mrs. Rodgers, taking with her her mother's jewels. Her failure to return to the family home was followed by a search of the house, and it was found that her dead mother had vanished but her father to fear she had been lured away to be robbed. Girl friends of Pasclino in this city say that he boasted that he was friendly with an Italian count, but they believed that he was joking.

Mrs. Arthur P. Beauregard, with whom the girl roomed, found letters and photographs of Pasclino.

Mrs. Beauregard was in the room and then brought the girl in. She left the girl in the room, locking it from the outside. She was dressed in a tan suit and a large hat and carried a suitcase. A large number of puffs in her back hair. Mrs. Beauregard described the girl as very white from fear. She was nervous.

There are no letters to the police. Mrs. Beauregard says no jewelry on Elizabeth.

TAFT GIVES SNUB TO CONGRESSMAN

President Denies Audience to Francis B. Harrison.

ANGERED BY HUMILIATION

New Yorker Declares He Made Appointment For President to Receive Delegation and Had To Wait. That He Would Not Be Received.

Washington, June 10.—Representative Francis Burton Harrison (Democrat), of New York, said at the capitol that he had received a rebuff at the White House from President Taft.

In company with Representatives Goldfogle, his colleague, and Gardner, of Massachusetts, Mr. Harrison called on the president at the White House to talk with the president in relation to the new tariff bill preventing naturalizers of Hebrews in Russia.

After the party had waited some time, Mr. Harrison said, Wheeler, the president's secretary, privately informed him that the president had decided to see no one. So quietly was this done that the rest of the party had got into Mr. Norton's room before Mr. Harrison knew what had occurred.

Mr. Harrison was to have been the spokesman of the party and he felt that the president was much surprised when called upon by Mr. Norton to present the delegation. He said, given by the president declined to see Mr. Harrison after he had made an appointment.

No explanation of the incident was given out at the White House. Mr. Harrison said he considered that the subject probably would be made later, but he was refused further to discuss the affair.

Echo of Lawler Affair.

There was considerable excitement in connect the affair with Mr. Harrison's appointment to the office of assistant secretary of the treasury, which was made vacant by the resignation of Frederick Taft, private secretary to President Taft.

PRINCETON TAKES PROCTOR GIFT

Dispute Over Graduate College Site Settled.

WILL RECEIVE $1,500,000

Western Man's Offer of $500,000, Once Withdrawn, Was Renewed With Satisfactory Conditions—Mrs. Bage Gives $150,000.

Princeton, N. J., June 10—As a result of a special meeting of the board of trustees of Princeton university the inactivities will acquire about $1,500,000 in gifts. The basis of the census as a renewal of the offer made by William Cooper Procter, of Cincinnati, and brings to an end the controversy over the site of the graduate college.

Mr. Procter in May, 1900, offered the university $500,000 on condition that the alumni raised an equal amount, all to go to the graduate college. Following the controversy over the site Mr. Procter's gift was withdrawn. Prior to the renewal of the gift the ball million to be given by the alumni it said to be secured in pledges from prominent alumni.

Mrs. Russell Sage, it was announced, has given $150,000 to build the dormitories already donated by her and to build a fourth dormitory to be built on a plot in the northwest part of the campus.

The renewal of the offer of Mr. Procter was made upon terms satisfactory to not only Princeton but Woodrow Wilson, but all the members of the board of trustees.

The bequest by the late Isaac C. Wyman, which has been variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000, it is now said, will be available for the erection of the graduate college at the close of the life estate which was a chief condition of the original Procter agreement.

With the possibility of the university's graduate college on the estate of the Wyman bequest the site question was practically settled, Princeton having said the objection to the location of the site on the Wyman property because it is said.

It is understood that the $500,000 to be raised by the alumni is to go to the precipetary system instead of to the endowment fund as originally set by Mr. Procter's original offer.

Woodrow Wilson's name as addresses before the board, in which he said:

"I very heartily congratulate the board upon the successful issue of negotiations which gives so bright a promise to the future of the graduate school which have so richly endowed as with the generous gifts of Mr. Wyman with favor and support of thoughtful friends."

Dr. John M. T. Finney, of Baltimore, was elected a life trustee.

BOY OF 9 A SUICIDE

Hanged Himself Rather Than Go Back to School.

Newark, N. J., June 10—The body of Joseph Sabolsky, nine years old, who committed suicide by hanging in the attic of his home, 1 Ellsworth avenue, rather than go back to school after the summer vacation, he threatened to send him to a reformatory, lay in his little white coffin in the undertaker parlor on the first floor.

Murdered by Black Hand.

Failure to hold a Black Hand secret society meeting in the cellar of his home in the brutal murder of Tony Serafino, 35 years old, of Avenue A, between Fogel & Co., of Williamsburg, is considered the motive for the shooting last night of Nesteville, near Lancaster.

The murdered man, who had been in this country for seven years, had amassed a fortune of considerable size, and had property in both Philadelphia and New York, but he had no enemies that he knew of, according to his person constantly.

Lodisio Lodisio, an Italian, called Tony, applied to Fogel & Co. for employment about 7 o'clock last night and was directed to the work, feared the stranger, whom he avoided at the time. Later he was found dead in the cellar with a bullet hole in the northwest part of the head.

Two More Fined for Smuggling.

TO have good health is the birthright of every individual. Some children will be born less desirable and there is an inherited tendency in diseases, but even such may be the case good health may still be attained and, having been attained, may be held to the limit of wisdom followed. To be free from disease, to be a normal individual, the more of a man will his own power then many people suppose. A simple prescription which will help the person who already has good health to retain it and will also do much in guiding it for the individual and so benefit it if it is faithfully followed, is this:

Nourishing food in right amount.
Sufficient fresh air and exercise.
A fair share of work and a fair amount of recreation.

Eight hours' sleep in a well ventilated room.

A cheerful mind free from worry.

A few moments' thought will show the intelligent person that each one of these rules is essential to good health, and not one of them can be safely omitted if it is to be retained. However, to the sick of whatever kind or possibly because of a lapse and neglect of one or more of the above rules, sickness does come into the home. It is the result of nature's progression of nature's laws and brings its attendant misery and care. What is to do when some member of the family is ill is always a pressing question. It is not always possible or necessary to have a professional nurse, and yet it is necessary that the patient should have good care or that there may be a speedy and thorough recovery.

The sickroom is one of the first direction given in times of sickness should be, "Keep the room clean and free from rational methods," and yet sometimes there is a lack of the understanding of the body that one's interpretation of these methods and rules is common sense is far from right. It is not the common sense to think that to give tender attention is nursing in any sense. Nursery an attempt will be made to point out some of the things which should be done and others observed in the sickroom where there is sickness. These little things, untaught by the doctor, may be just the very points which hasten or retard the patient's recovery.

Arrangement of the Sickroom.

Unless the illness be of an infectious nature, so thoughtful patient must be sheltered from the rest of the family, his own room will be most satisfactory to him. But when a change of rooms can be made select one that is cheerful and with a view that is necessary for visiting. If possible, fresh air for the patient will be of small value if he is quiet in sleep and color. Such should be the intention of a bedroom at any time, but it is doubly necessary in times of sick care. Complexions will proper and listful color will accordingly are tolling to work nerves. A room without a carpet is best, as well as safest as to sickness, but in ordinary situate of illness it is of very little disturb the ordinary movement of the room, as it might have a tendency rather to rest the patient. But during fevers and severe complaint carpet should be on carpet or draperies to hold and breed disease germs.

Making the Patient's Bed.

About the first to be considered is the bed. It should have a good, firm mattress, not too soft, with a blanket or pad under the lower sheet. The bedding should be light and warm, free from electric lines from a blanket or two, as the case may require. A light, comfortable sheet or dainty spread. The ordinary white counterpane does not add materially to the warmth and is too heavy for comfort. There should be at least a pair in summer and varying in size There should be enough one to tuck under the shoulders, between the knees or feet and to tuck back when the patient becomes weary of his position. There should be one or two larger ones to serve as supports when the patient sits up during convalescence. To make the patient's bed properly three sheets are required, besides the blankets, pillows and spread, one in case of severe illness a piece of rubber sheeting three-quarters of a yard wide will be needed under the lower sheet. It requires considerable skill to arrange a bed for a sick person so that it will be thoroughly comfortable and free from wrinkles. Bed-making operations by drawing the under sheet very smooth from the foot and neck and lay it in well under the mattress. I'm it at each corner with a strong selvedge in the patient is heavy or inclined to be restless. Over the under sheet and across the middle of the bed to the head of the bed lay the upper sheet, folded in half, or a smaller one, covering under three-quarters of a yard, in the center. If a rubber is used it should be put on under the draw sheet, firmly pinned to the mattress on both sides. The latter is particularly useful, because it keeps the under sheet close for a longer time and may be changed without disturbing the patient as often as may be.

In putting on the upper sheet leave it loose enough to allow room to turn over the blanket. Tuck both sheet and blanket well in at the foot, but the patient may turn comfortably without disturbing the bed. The pillows should be fitted smoothly into cases and should be light, but not so soft as uncomfortable. Three pillows to elevate the patient's head are a great help in addition it is expected the a number of bandages should be used through the camp at tents and other places so that the entire camp will be well lighted at night, making it attractive for the evening visitors who may wish to call at their several during the month of July.

There is also reason to believe that the National Guard camp in August will be lighted with electricity. This is done the camp will be made a very much attractive at night than during the last few years when gasoline was used.

SHOULD PLACE WATCHMAN

The jury of inquest over the body of Roderick Dhu Murray, who was killed by the St. Louis limited train at Hillsboro, Illinois, today at Glen Rock, censured the Northern Central Railway company for not retaining a watchman at this crossing. The hearing was held in the office of Justice of the Peace Thomas, and was attended by a number of railway officials of Gettysburg, lawyer and conductor of the train which struck Mr. Murray. The jury was presented with but one exception of Glen Rock men. The verdict in effect was as follows: That Roderick Dhu Murray came to his death by being struck by the engine of the St. Louis limited train at Glen Rock at 3.15 p. m.; that the deceased was not guilty of contributory blame, but that the Northern Central Railway company be censured for not placing a watchman at the Valley street crossing.

CAR STRUCK HORSE

A horse and runabout driven by Geo. Bowers, of Mt. Joy, was struck by a trolley car in Lancaster, Pa., on Wednesday of this week. The horse became scared and ran in front of the approaching car. The motorman applied the brakes and brought the car to a standstill, but not in time to avoid striking the team.

The horse belonging to Mr. Bowers was killed and the runabout was badly damaged. The horse became scared and ran in front of the approaching car. The motorman applied the brakes and brought the car to a standstill, but not in time to avoid striking the team.

This extension is his pet project. By it he hopes to make a big trunk line from the Western Maryland and also to make billionaire a greater commonwealth than it is giving to make Baltimore a miserable business character, both for export and domestic purposes.

It has been definitely proclaimed that this link will be ready for operation within 18 months. President Bush wants this promise kept. He wants to see trains from Pittsburg via Western Maryland to the Port of Maryland within this time. It is to this end he is handing his efforts.

ELECTRICITY AT MANEUVER CAMP

Electric Lights will be Used for Illumination at Maneuver Camp in July. Arc Lights at Headquarters and Elsewhere.

The Gettysburg Lighting Company has received the contract for the lighting of the maneuver camp and it is expected that the entire place will be thoroughly illuminated within a few days.

Eight large arc lights will be placed through the camp at headquarters and other points and eight more arcs will be placed at the switches where the loading will take place and where the commissary will be located. In addition it is expected that a number of incandescent lamps will be used through the camp at tents and other places so that the entire camp will be well lighted at night, making it attractive for the evening visitors who may wish to call at their several during the month of July.

There is also reason to believe that the National Guard camp in August will be lighted with electricity. This is done the camp will be made a very much attractive at night than during the last few years when gasoline was used.
